

ABSTRACT

A system and method for automatically generating a spoken dialog application is disclosed. In one embodiment, a graphical representation of a call flow is converted into a context free grammar representation, which is then converted into a finite state machine, which is then used as the basis for the spoken dialog application.